

In the Race to Develop Novel Therapies, You Need a Powerful Ally

The American Red Cross Cellular Therapy Program

Cell Therapy offers tremendous promise in the treatment of disease. The American Red Cross stands ready to support your efforts to advance patient care.

A Full Range of Services

The American Red Cross brings to cell therapy innovators a nationwide system of regional centers, expertise in cell collection, testing, processing, manufacturing and storage in accordance with all applicable regulations and rigorous quality controls. The Red Cross offers a full range of services, including:

- Laboratory and patient care services for both development and commercial phases
- Mobile on-site apheresis cell collection
- Cell collection at Red Cross centers
- Cell processing, including clean room manufacturing
- Extensive transportation network
- Extensive hospital network
- Cryopreservation and long-term storage
- Quality control testing
- Medical and technical consultation 24 hours / 7 days a week

A Powerful Ally

The American Red Cross offers you the confidence and quality synonymous with its historic mission, a leader in the field of blood component manufacturing for over half a century, and a key provider of hematopoietic progenitor cell services for more than 20 years.

The Red Cross is distinguished for:

- Dependability
- Extensive resources including thousands of trained professionals
- Nationwide presence
- Strong research program
- State-of-the-art technology
- Quality testing and safety procedures
- Competitive service fees
- Proactive quality assurance

The American Red Cross offers you experience, credibility, and vigorous support where and when you need them.

We offer coverage nationwide. For contacts and locations, please visit redcrossblood.org/clinicalservices

